For Lonely Wives

Club Formed in London For Women When Husband Has Gone To The War

A "lonely wives" club, for wives and mothers whose husbands and sons have gone to war and many of the members have been evacuated, has been formed in London after a long and arduous search.

Membership fee is threepence a year and for this the women receive use of the club room and literary programs for the children and the opportunity to buy handwoven goods from the cafes for assistance.

The club was founded in July by the late Mrs. Kenneth Maclean, youngest daughter of Lord Maclean, a former Lord Chancellor. Since 1918 women have been members in the first week.

Ronald W. MacKinnon of the Petroleum Company Limited, was in an interview at Edmonton that production of 87 octane aviation gasoline at Fort Norman, N.W.T., will cost 1,370 air miles north of Edmonton a complete success.

Fought Blaze in Bomber

Young Blade Operator Won Victoria Cross For Bravery

Pilot Officer Clare Arthur Connor, Toronto, told his own story of the bravery of his brother John H. Connor in a Royal Air Force bomber which was for the latter the Victoria Cross.

If it hadn't been for him it would have been impossible for me to tell the story," said Connor who himself won the Distinguished Flying Cross for the death-defying flight.

"After we were hit, I could hear rounds of ammunition exploding and saw enemy aircraft coming in at my back. I couldn't get in touch with the crew."

"Then I saw the navigator and gunner had been forced to bail out by fire and explosions."

"How Hannah escaped burns I am completely. Yet I don't seriously burned and hope to be out of hospital before long."

Hannah, at 15, the youngest man in the war in the V.C., was wireless operator in a bomber in the machine which was flying.

Returning from an Antwerp raid, the bomb compartment was hit by a shell, setting a fire which grew rapidly and threatened to engulf the gas tanks.

Hannah forced his way through the fire to get extinguishers and found the navigator and gunner had been forced to bail out. He could have done the same thing but he would not do it alone although the plane's ammunition was exploding in all directions and the intense heat was almost killing him.

At the young soldier put the fire out and then helped Connor jump from the plane, saving both his life and the life of his brother.

Government's Policy Of Low Cost Housing May Be Due For Revision

The Canadian government's policy of assistance to low-cost housing—out of the main stream to the government—has been under review for some years of depression—due to a large and extensive overbuilding in the light of wartime conditions, it has been learned.

It is known that instructions have gone to Parliament last fall to Canada's representatives abroad to study the latest information on the subject from other countries, particularly the recent experience of the United States and Great Britain.

When this information arrives, it will be digested by federal economists and presumably will help to furnish the light by which the government will draft a new policy to incorporate both the changed conditions in the Dominion and the experience there.

The factors that combine to intensify the housing question to the federal authorities are the present high cost of building materials.

Originally the government's policy was an unemployment measure, with the stimulation that it has now given to the private sector, the importance of the policy in that regard has largely disappeared.

It is in the present, however, that the government has been aggressive in the present year, federal loans to home ownership have been increased to $100,000,000.

The authorities, however, must be determined whether or not the policy is more important to the nation's economy, to hold taxes and prices at a total and of the labor that it is being poured into non-war channels can be justified.

The government must also be concerned that the present policy is to be used to meet upon an emergency basis, primarily active housing program, to solve the problem of housing large numbers of people who are being displaced by the war.

In other words, the problem that the government is a two-fold one. The authorities must keep their minds concerning not only the fact that they are not doing as long as the war is in progress, but also concerning possibly new housing.

Army Orders Clear

Soldier Who Carried Them Out Had Continuous Job

When they tell you to do something, the army means "do it now."

That's one thing would be soldiers of the N.P.A.M. force during their two-week training period at Vancouver.

Discipline in the army isn't as strict as it used to be. Men aren't driven any more; they don't have to be.

One well-known Vancouver businessman-soldier was told to dispose of his pile of socks. He took them to his corporal with him to do with it. Absolutely the corporal followed him with every member of his company of untrained material, and instructed him to do it.

The bulk gave away a large bundle of the socks to a barrow, and the rest he took to the surface.

Getting at the front pile of socks, he was instructed to do so. Again he was instructed to do so. Having a high, he dutifully dug another hole and landed the earth to it. Once there the process was repeated and might have gone on had not a sergeant investigated the mysterious case.

The private was to have been given a new pile of socks. But his job was finished, and that night he had something to do with it. The business life he's conducted pretty ahead.

A Large Scale War

Impossible For People To Stop War

What is to be done?

Remember this. The R.A.P. are always working to a plan—and that plan has proved very successful indeed. Even if no British aircraft are being shot down by a raid, by day and night, it does mean that they are not busy elsewhere. "Air-raid" according to attack, they might be brought down in States by a squadron stationed in Kent, and the last ditched in Derby would be a bomber squadron in New Zealand which attacked aircraft factories at Detroit," says Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Pollock.

It is difficult for the ordinary citizen to know what is going on in the war, and the private soldier to grasp the tactical dispositions along a 1,500-mile front—London Derby.

End Of War Niggers

"I don't like it either for women shoppers who like to handle goods by hand," said a clerk in a dry goods store when plain dress clothes were examined. "All they have to do is wear a dress which is worth the money."

The Bottle Club

Messages Committed In Bottles Take Long Ocean Journeys

The Vancouver Bottle Club, a London bottle club provides an appropriate opportunity to mention the existence of a London Bottle Club, whose members are not in the least interested in drinking.

A certain Colonel, Edward P. Bailey, an Australian, started this society in 1926 by putting hundreds of messages in many languages in glass bottles and scattering them, a few at a time, from the deck of a ship, from the office of the club. The membership grew among the people of the world, and the bottles and the messages were carried and replied to in the messages.

From all quarters of the globe, and look months and sometimes years to arrive.

From a casual bottle-dropping contest, the International Bottle Club has become a systematic organization. The members collect hundreds of old bottles and hand them over to the club, which then sends them with requests to other clubs, and at specified points in the journey, a part of the messages are returned to the bottle messengers and are carried on by the club.

The club is now so large that it can provide reliable information as to the location of a bottle, and the direction of its journey.

The Wind Of Victory

Is Carrying-Through To Germany Through Wings Of R.A.F.

This was a fine phrase Mr. Power used in a speech at the R.A.F. welcoming to Canada a party of young Australian flyers who had completed their training here.

"The finger of retribution," he said, "is being pointed at Germany by the wings of victory in your hands."

In his thousands Australian flyers are preparing themselves to pursue over the German frontier, and it is this, this was the German aircraft night by night the Royal Air Force, and the German aircraft night by night the Royal Air Force, and the German aircraft night by night the Royal Air Force.
